ATTEND GRENADA HORSE SHOW

NEW WRITER FOR THE SENTINEL--WHO IS HE? SERRA, HIMSELF, TELLS

The Grenada Sentinel with this issue begins publication of a brand new weekly feature, "The Low Down from Hickory Grove," by Jo Serra. We have been looking Jo over the last few weeks and like the way he says things and believe our readers will thank us for the privilege of reading Jo's homely philosophy, even if they might not agree with him.

We asked Jo to tell us something about his own history or record or whatever he might call it, and he sent us the following: "The boss says to me, Jo, he says, maybe somebody will happen to have a little time on their hands, and will pick up the paper and maybe read one of your writings so it might not be a bad idea if we told 'em something about where you come from and who you are and why, and etc. So I says sure, I'll tell you everything. I like to please people, so if the boss or anybody else wants to read what I'm goin' to say, why, dog-gone, I'll feel good about it."

"I reckon, I'd ought to kinda start in and tell you where I was born, so I'll tell you. I was raised there on a farm in Illinois--wore boots and waded mud to Hickory Grove school in the winter time and had a sick time all summer goin' barefooted."

"And then when I got up around here, says, maybe we'd better get this here saying into town and get him used to the street cars. And they did. But gee whizz, you don't learn anything listenin' to street cars and never will, so all I know now is what I learned before I was 15."

"Well, after awhile I moseied out there through Texas and California and then to Kansas, and before I woke up, I was married to one of those gals out there in Topeka. Then I had to really go to work. You know though, I gotta admit that I wouldn't even have got to first base if it hadn't been for this here gal. Here's how it happened. I got to scribblin' stuff around on the backs of envelopes and places, and one day the Mrs."

An Early Start Urged For State Fair Exhibits

A Bigger and Better Balanced Mississippi Free State Fair For 1937

In planning for a bigger and better balanced Mississippi Free State Fair for 1937, state and county extension agents and fair officials are emphasizing the importance of "an early start."

"You can't plan and put on a creditable exhibit if you wait too late," J. E. Ruff, district extension agent and superintendent of the farm show at the state fair, told county agents at a recent meeting. It was pointed out that exhibits must be selected in season as crops mature. Specimen displays of winter legumes and small grains must be selected in the spring months, properly cured and carefully stored until fair time.

John Williams, Hinds County Agent, emphasized the importance of getting local people to help plan exhibits and secure material.

Highly successful in putting on attractive exhibits at the state fair, County Agent Williams says the best source of help and information for individuals and groups who are interested in planning and putting on exhibits in Extension Bulletin No. 79, copies of which may be obtained from local county agents or from the state extension service at State College.

Grenada Band Concert Saturday

The Grenada High School Band under the direction of Mr. Roger Dollarhide will give a band concert in the public square Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Grenada Band has made a fine showing under Mr. Dollarhide's direction and he states that he appreciates the support the community has given the boys.

There will be no admission charge and the public is cordially invited to attend.

W. P. A. and Game and Fish Commission Build Museums

Through Federal Aid, Mississippi is enjoying for the first time a natural history museum service of consequence. Under a Works Progress Administration Plant and Animal Survey Project sponsored by the State Game and Fish Commission in cooperation with the Biology Department of the State College, natural history museums are being equipped with study collections and with attractive exhibits at:

University of Mississippi, Oxford, Miss.; Mississippi State College for Women, Columbus, Miss.; Mississippi State College, Starkville, Miss.; Delta State Teachers College, Cleveland, Miss.; Sunflower Junior College, Moorhead, Miss.; East Central Junior College, DeCatur, Miss.; Copiah-Lincoln Junior College, Wesson, Miss.; State Teachers College, Hattiesburg, Miss.; Jones County Junior College, Ellisville, Miss.; Pearl River Junior College, Poplarville, Miss.; Southwest Junior College, Summit, Miss.; Harrison-Stone-Jackson Junior College, Perkins-ton, Miss.; Scooba Junior College, Scooba, Miss.; Holmes Junior College, Goodman, Miss.

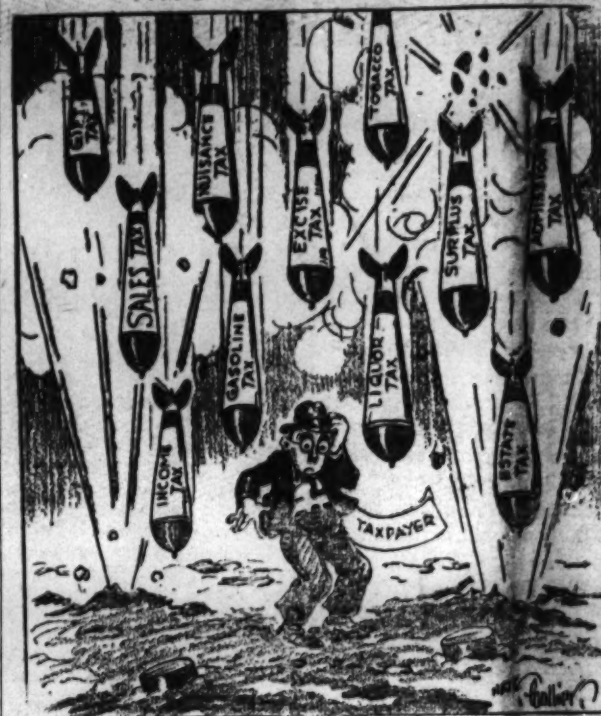

Although only a few of these exhibits have yet been formally opened to the public, many visitors are admitted daily to the museums and work shops where W. P. A. workers, employees of the State Game and Fish Commission, and College Biologists are working together to prepare specimens of plant and animal material for laboratory and research use, and to install permanent exhibits for popular educational purposes. Under this program a large exhibit is also being built in Jackson in cooperation with the State Game and Fish Commission.

Miss Fanny A. Cook, research secretary to the Commission, is State Director of the Project and is giving personal supervision to the work at 2560 North State St. It is probably this exhibit that best illustrates the many educational advantages afforded the public through the project. It is here that one sees all kinds of mounted game and food fishes found in the fresh waters in Mississippi, where artists and taxidermists are combining their efforts to make birds and mammals appear natural in their native habitat, and where the photographer has caught and reproduced expressions of young birds begging for food and of magnolias unfolding their waxy petals.

One observes here series of small but attractive exhibits which are shipped out for camp, for school and club conservation programs. These include well-done nature booklets, posters, bird boxes, feeding trays, and plant material, as well as sections of flowering plants of economic importance in wildlife conservation management. Several of the smaller museums are rendering a similar service and there are arranging window displays for public entertainments and instruction.

THE FINANCIER'S WAY--AND FORD'S

Dearborn, Mich., June 30--With the whole country wondering as to the attitude of the Ford Motor Company in the national situation, the Ford Almanac, out tomorrow, in a lead article entitled "THE FINANCIER'S WAY--AND FORD'S," says:

"Wherever in America an industrial worker strives to better his condition, he joins the fight for industrial justice which Henry Ford has been leading for more than 30 years--on the one hand, to pay the worker more than a 'living wage,' that he and his children may have the benefit of some of the luxuries and opportunities of life; and, on the other, to keep the price of those luxuries and opportunities within reach of the workers' dollar."

"The younger workers of today know little and appreciate less--the condition of the American workingman 40 years ago. In those days the financiers ruled. Labor, to them, was just another commodity to be bought at the lowest possible price. Work shifts were 10 to 12 hours a day--everywhere common labor got from 90 cents to $1 a day. Highly skilled labor got from $1.50 to $2 a day. Men who, by special ability, or unusual circumstances, got $3 a day were looked upon by their fellows as the top-notchers of the industrial world."

"The basic aim of management then was to produce as cheaply as possible and sell for the highest price possible. That was the financier's way. That system affected the conditions under which men had to labor. Tools and machinery were kept in use until they utterly broke down. Millions of men worked, not on an hourly basis but on 'piece work'--another device of the financiers to sweat every nickel possible out of the men."

"When the tools got old and worn out the earning power of the men was cut down. When the machinery broke down--as it often did--the men lost time and wages. "Decent, up-to-date, sanitary conditions for industrial workers were unknown; the lavatories, workers had to use were little better than pig-stys. If a man was injured at his work, that was his grief; hospital care, in plants, for the most part, did not exist. Time lost, with pay, was unknown. Cleanliness in the plant was unknown; modern lighting and ventilation were unknown; lockers for the workers' street clothes; special protective clothing and safety devices for men working in dangerous jobs and many other features that make Ford plants today the safest and most sanitary in the world were all unknown 40 years ago."

"Henry Ford worked long years as a day laborer under those same conditions. That experience burned into his soul that hatred of industrial injustice that has characterized his every action he became an employer."

"When, at 17, he first came to

15TH MISSISSIPPI REGIMENT OF '61

(By W. E. Boushe)

In this and the next article, the battle of Franklin, I use as the base of my information, personal recollections of conversations with those who lived in those historic days, who were links in the chain. I draw upon the memoirs and many delightful conversations I have held with my wonderful friend, Col. J. R. Binford, of Duck Hill, who served as private, adjutant, major, lieutenant colonel and finally upon the death of Colonel Farrell, became Colonel of the famous 15th Mississippi. My recollection of my father, who served as a private from beginning to end of that little struggle. Again the recollections of Capt. Jim Crowder, who was my neighbor and friend who as a great patriot lived to rehearse those stirring records. If there is a piece of history which we have a just right to feel proud it is the part our parents took in the Civil War. If there be an organization which should stand out on the walls of valor of Southland's halls of fame it is the 15th Mississippi and the Grenada Rifles. The 15th Mississippi was composed of the Long Creek Rifles Atala County Co. A, Winona Stars, Carroll County Co. B, Quitman Rifles, Holmes County Co. C, Wiggall Rifles Choctaw County Co. D, McCluney Rifles, Carroll County Co. E, Water Valley Rifles, Yalobusha Co. Co. F, Grenada Rifles, Yalobusha County Co. G, Yalobusha Rifles, Yalobusha County Co. H, Choctaw Guards, Choctaw County Co. I, Oetibbeha Plowboys, Oetibbeha County Co. J. The Grenada Rifles.

Reclaiming Lives of Youthful Criminals In Court Each Year

Easier to Educate Parents Than To Reform Child After Delinquency

St. Joseph, Mich., June 28, 1937

Dear Editor: I would appreciate having you give this letter your personal attention for I am convinced you can be of great assistance to myself and other judges in reclaiming the lives of thousands of youthful criminals who appear in court each year.

Authorities in this field recognize the fact that juvenile crime can be greatly lessened if parents are educated to assume their proper duties and responsibilities. In other words, it is much cheaper and far more effective to educate parents to prevent their children from becoming delinquent than attempt to reform a boy after he has become an habitual offender. Taxpayers are already overburdened and cannot provide additional funds for us judges to employ psychologists, psychiatrists and social workers to diagnose and administer correctional treatment to the youth who has already had his first contact with crime. Therefore, such boys are soon recruited in the standing army of three and a half million persons who prey upon society at an annual cost of fifteen billion dollars.

To assist in arousing parents, several hundred public spirited editors have agreed to print a brief seventy-five word article which I am donating each week. These articles will hammer home to parents over a definite period of time, the methods whereby they themselves are contributing toward dishonesty and disobedience in their children. Even though each of these editors is sadly in need of space they are wholeheartedly cooperating for they realize that a brief flash-in-the-pan campaign will not educate parents and thereby curb juvenile delinquency.

Therefore, I am appealing to you to aid us by publishing one of the enclosed articles each week. Trusting that you will join us in this campaign, and that I may have the pleasure of a favorable reply, I am, with kind personal regards,

Sincerely yours,

Malcolm Hatfield,

Probate Judge.

Young Chamberlain

Off To West Point

John Edwin Chamberlain, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Chamberlain, left Tuesday, June 29, for West Point, New York to enter the United States Military Academy. He had previously passed the physical examination required of entrants to the academy.

After graduating from Gore Springs High School in 1935 Mr. Chamberlain entered Sunflower Junior College at Moorhead and completed two years of college work. His record in school was such that he was not required to stand the mental examination.

Mr. Chamberlain received his appointment to the academy from Congressman A. L. Ford.

50 Additional N. Y. A. Workers Needed

Grenada County Forest Ranger, J. E. Shaw, Jr., announced that he is in need of 50 additional N. Y. A. workers for forestry work in Grenada county. Those interested are requested to see Mr. Shaw at the Fair Grounds, Grenada.

The Grenada High School Band has a nice job cut out for it. They are not only going to play at the Horse Show but they will be helping to sell the tickets. The band has been offered 25 per cent of the net proceeds of the show.

They are going to make a house to house canvass next Monday morning and every citizen will be given an opportunity to buy a ticket for the big outstanding event of the year.

We see stories about the horse show as far away as Natchez. In Clarksdale last week and Mr. Hugh, secretary of the C. of C. as we walked in he held up a card advertising the show and says we are cooperating. We are going to have a lot of visitors but best of all we want Grenada people to support the show.

It is mighty hot to walk from door to door selling tickets but the young folks are going to do this very thing and we sincerely hope that they will get great encouragement in their effort to kill two birds with one visit. They help the Horse Show, and they help the band.

And too they are to get 25 per cent of the proceeds of the show to be given after the show and all they can make with the sale of cold drinks.

It is up to every citizen of Grenada to buy some tickets. The band members are going to do double and triple duty. Let us show our appreciation and not send the young people away discouraged. We hope that the ticket sale will go over with a bang.

Begin Taking Applications Monday

Mr. E. L. Moorow, manager of the Grenada Hosiery Mill, announces that he has received application blanks and will begin taking applications Monday, July 12, for employment in the mill.

Mr. Moorow points out that hosiery knitting is a trade national in scope and must be mastered if the employee is to be an asset to his employer. It will take several months to learn the trade and those who do not intend to stick by their job are urged not to apply for work.

The first employees will be put to work some time in August.

Miss Hamill Leaves Grenada Hi School

Miss Beatrice Hamill leaves Saturday for her home in Philadelphia. It is with real regret that Grenadians have learned that Miss Hamill has severed her connections with the city schools. She has accepted a position in the Greenwood schools.

Lads From North, South, East and West Attend National Jamboree

Washington, D. C.--While Scouts resident in the District of Columbia will literally "walk across the street" to attend the Jamboree, lads from north, south east and west, many living more than 3,000 miles from the Jamboree encampment will travel long distances and spend considerable money to reach the Capitol City, June 30th.

Practically all of these Scouts will have financed themselves, paying not only their $25.00 Jamboree fee, but travel and sightseeing expense as well.

Reports from Scouts show that boys have been doing the usual "unusual" things typical to Boy Scouts... building and selling bird houses, mowing lawns, selling

W. A. Ransom, chairman of the Horse Show Association, tells us that every indication points to a big success. They expect to have Youngbloods' celebrated horses. His noted team of black horses has shown in Madison Square Garden in New York on two occasions. This is reputed to be one of the finest teams of horses in the United States.

Entries for the show are coming in fast and indications are now that they will probably have 125 or 150 horses. Accommodations for 100 horses have already been arranged at the Fair Grounds, and the committee seems to think that they will have to build 40 or 50 more stalls to take care of the extra horses that will probably be here.

This is Grenada's first horse show, but indications are that it will be so great a success that we hope to have a horse show every year.

Mrs. P. T. LaGrone is chairman of the committee in charge of the sale of boxes and tickets that has been doing some wonderful work. Mrs. C. C. Cathey, who is vice-president of the Horse Show Association, has a big acquaintance throughout the delta where we expect to get so many fine horses, has been getting in touch with all of her acquaintances over there, insisting that they bring their horses to our show. Mr. George M. Garner, who is president of the Horse Show Association, is getting the track in fine shape and is also arranging for extra seats, as indications are that our grandstand will be inadequate to take care of the crowd expected. Mr. Garner's horse, Artist's Delight, took a blue ribbon at Newport, Arkansas, also at Leland, Miss., recently.

The Grenada business men have all been very nice in cooperating in and underwriting this show, and the enthusiasm from every angle throughout the county is increasing all the time.

Floodlights have been arranged in order to make the occasion a very spectacular one. Mr. P. T. LaGrone has very kindly offered assistance in installing these lights and cooperating with us in every way possible.

We look for the night of July 15th to be a gala one.

Twenty-five percent of the net profits of this show will go to the Grenada High School Band.

Mrs. Wright and Party to Florida

Mrs. N. N. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. John Ed Murray, Miss Virginia Ruth Wright and Miss Mary Alice Kettle left Wednesday night for Florida. They are making the trip by automobile and will be gone about ten days. They expect to visit Panama City, Orlando, St. Augustine and other points of interest in Florida.

THE FINANCIER'S WAY—AND FORD'S

Detroit, he had to have two jobs to make ends meet. At his day job at an engine works he worked 10 hours a day and got $2.50 a week. At his night job, repairing watches for a jeweler, he worked four hours a night and got $2.00 a week. $4.50 a week for 14 hours labor each day, six days a week! Thus, Henry Ford, from his own experience, knows, feels, and understands the viewpoint of the worker. His whole after life proves it.

"Most workers who become bosses soon lose the viewpoint of the men. Ford didn't. With time he became superintendent of the main engine-room of the Detroit Edison Co. Here, and at the sub-stations of the company, the men worked 12-hour shifts. Ford soon began pointing out to the management that, if the work-day were divided into three 8-hour shifts, the men would have leisure to improve themselves, would work better and improve the service. He also urged that, if the company expected to keep its employees, it must pay wages sufficient to permit the men to marry and raise families. With time he won both points.

"Ford's old boss—the man Ford used to work for—is still living in Detroit. He is Alex Dow, today president of the Detroit Edison Co. Not long ago, in speaking of the old days, he said: 'I well remember Henry Ford for two reasons: First, for the clearness and practical good sense of his ideas and, second, his constant interest in doing something to make shop conditions better. In those days we had a hard time getting men and keeping them. The electrical business was new. Men skilled in it were scarce. We had to take a good many raw men and train them, then, after they had their training many left us to go elsewhere.

"Ford's idea was that we ought to hire with the thought of keeping them with us for years. Of course, Ford had nothing to do with the policy—he himself was only on the payroll—but he had ideas; and one of them was that you couldn't keep good men unless you paid enough so that they could marry and raise families and have leisure to spend with their families, and enjoy life generally. I appreciate this—it was right along my line of thought.

"I remember Ford always urged this point strongly—that, in fixing the amount of wages to be paid, we should consider the cost of living, to make sure that the wages paid were high enough to buy all the things a growing family needs."

"That's what Ford's old boss says was on Ford's mind when Ford was a hired working man."

After 23 years of working for someone else, Ford got going as a manufacturer. He immediately put into effect some of the ideas and hopes he has acquired in relation to labor.

"It is difficult for people today to realize how revolutionary were Ford's moves. At a time when American industry generally believed it sound business practice to employ as few men as possible, work them as hard and as long hours as possible, and pay them as little as possible, Ford launched, on a huge scale, a policy of employing as many men as possible, on a basis of a shorter day and shorter week, lighting their toil as much as possible and yet, paying higher and higher wages.

"Ford's Highland Park plant became the wonder of the industrial world. It was not only cleaner, better lighted and ventilated, with modern sanitary facilities for its thousands of workers, but, by installing huge conveyor systems, moving assembly lines and the new devices Ford had taken the load off the backs of men.

"Then, too, he used every ounce of his ingenuity to lower the cost of his car to the buyer. He made it possible for the worker and his family—as well as the rich—to have a car.

"And, to make doubly sure that at least Ford employees could have a car and a home and the other benefits of life, Ford did a thing even more astounding to the world of those days.

"He put into effect a $5-a-day minimum wage for all workers. The effect of this, through the years, has been to force wages up in all other industries.

"Ford's minimum wage today is $6-a-day for an 8-hour shift. Ford's high wage is the one and only thing that keeps wages up all over the country!

"If Ford should lower wages—or should any law or agreement restrict his freedom to raise wages—wages would go down all over the country.

"With Ford paying $6-a-day, the financiers also are forced to pay high wages in their plants, to attract labor. They want that stop! That's why they are again trying right now to force Ford to do business their way.

"That is the true meaning of this drive to force Ford to accept an outside party as a wage dictator for Ford employees, when, for many years, Ford, voluntarily, has paid his employees the highest industrial wages in the world.

"Heretofore Ford has always paid the highest wages his industry could afford. Once—and during the depression, too—he had it up to $7-a-day minimum. Only years of terrible business slump forced it down. Now he has it up to $6-a-day again. He was the first employer in the country to restore the minimum wage after the depression.

"The next step in the game of the financiers will be wage standardization. All plants of the same kind will pay the same wages. The skilled worker will have lost the benefit of his skill—because he will then have no market where he can sell it for a price higher than that named by the wage dictator.

"And should you sign away your right, you will find out, a little later on, when all industries are under one control, that Ford cannot raise wages in his own plant—as he has done so many times before. He would not be allowed to. If he did, it would cause trouble for the other plants controlled by the financier's wage dictators. There's something to think about!"

(By Congressman A. L. Ford)

WASHINGTON SUMMARY

Monday the Senate passed the Interior Department Appropriation Bill. This bill carries the items for the Natchez Trace Parkway in Mississippi and for Vocational Education. The Senate refused, before passing the bill, to reduce the Vocational Education Appropriation from fourteen million dollars to four million dollars. The vote was 39 to 29 in favor of the larger sum.

On Monday and Tuesday the House debated and passed the Farm Tenancy Bill, providing for loans to tenants to buy land. Ten million dollars is authorized to be appropriated for next year, twenty five million for 1939 and fifty million for 1940 to carry out the program. The Senate passed a similar bill on Friday and the differences between the two will now have to be worked out by a Conference Committee so the final form of the bill, as it will be when enacted into law, cannot yet be given. The general intention of the legislation

WHAT NEXT?

—THE MERCHANDISE MARCH—

While nature is finicky in supplying just the right conditions for growing things out-of-doors, plants and flowers grown inside the home are often subject to more hazards through over-watering or under-watering. This difficulty may be overcome by the use of the sub-irrigating and self-watering principle as illustrated in the novel flower box pictured above. The supplying of just the right amount of air and water directly to the roots of the plants, with an indicator recording the amount the plants are consuming, relieves the housewife of constant vigilance in tending them.

Washington, D. C.—Now that the thermometer frisks 90 and the frost is on the julep, talk in Washington drawing rooms turns to subjects requiring no brain effort at all—such as, for instance, 1940 presidential candidates. Recently a Midwestern magazine polled the Washington correspondents, asking them to pick "their guess and not their wish." The results have just been announced privately: the majority "guessed" the incumbent.

Congratulations are coming into the office of Harry Hopkins. In fact the heartiest congratulations are being tendered to Mr. Hopkins by himself. The reason Jack Baker, former Jack-of-all-trades, has resigned from the relief family to join the C.I.O. under whose banner he will attempt to organize the Government workers.

The W.P.A. administration it seems has been working for some time to get Mr. Baker a job—elsewhere. Not that Jack was short on ability they'll tell you, but simply that he has a surplus of temperament.

According to young Government officials—the ones just under the top level and who do the detailed work—Cabinet officers are returning to former habits of giving the good jobs to young men who are independently wealthy—a policy discarded by the New Deal until lately. In light of late events such discrimination gives the C.I.O. organizers some of the reasons they seek for unionizing Government employees.

One night lately, Senator Copeland of New York delivered a speech about his drug and food act to a large gathering. On the way home he wondered why Mrs. Copeland was so silent—finally he asked her how she thought the speech went over. "I don't know," said his wife. "There was a distinguished gentleman sitting next to me who kept saying, 'What a bore this Copeland is!'"

"Who was it?" demanded Copeland. "Coming to that," answered the lady. "You see, I finally asked the man if he knew who I was. He said he didn't and I told him. Then he said to me, 'Do you know who I am?' I said, 'No.' Whereupon he said, 'Thank God, and left in a hurry.'"

President Roosevelt's appointment of Charles P. Taft as chairman of the Federal Board of Mediation has received more bipartisan praise than any recent act of the administration. The selection of the son of a late President and Chief Justice to seek peace in the steel labor war is acclaimed as a stroke of statesmanship—and right in the nick of time for the C.I.O. whose chief, John L. Lewis, realized it was waging a losing fight. Incidentally, Mr. Taft, a Republican in undeniably good standing, has been suspected by Old Guard die-hards of being sympathetic to the New Deal policies.

In his book, "You and I—and Roosevelt," the ex-Landon adviser refrained from condemning the Roosevelt Administration, although the book was published in 1936—a Presidential election year.

The Hon. Harold Knutson, member of Congress from Minnesota, was the principal speaker at the graduation exercises at Mount Ripley High School not long ago.

When the M.C. was going strong he said in effect that machines had largely replaced hand work, but that nothing could replace the trained mind. The applause at this point was tremendous. Through the thunder the still voice of a sweet girl graduate trembled, "He won't be long now. That was the climax."

is to make loans available to farm tenants, to sharecroppers and to laborers on farms, preference being given to married people, the loans to be used for the purchase of farms and to be repaid in thirty years at three percent interest. It was advanced in the debate by one Congressman that 72 out of every 100 Mississippi farmers are tenants; in other words, are working some one else's land. During the next three years it is hoped that this number will be reduced by operation of this law. The number to be helped the first year will be small, but will be increased from year to year. When the bill is signed by the President machinery will then be set up by the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out the provisions of the Act.

The following bills, among others, having been passed by both the House and the Senate were this week signed by the President: 1. The bill extending the Civilian Conservation Corps until June 30, 1940. 2. The $1,500,000,000 relief appropriations bill.

Children In Court

(By Judge Malcolm Hatfield)

A young man who recently returned from visiting relatives in a city where a labor dispute was in progress today learned in court that the world did not owe him a living.

When apprehended in the act of burglarizing a gasoline station, he suddenly informed officers that it was no sin to rob a large oil company. In this particular instance, years of splendid home training were cast aside after an adolescent boy had witnessed the violence and hatreds that accompanied the labor dispute. The sons of rich and poor alike should be carefully shielded from such scenes for they not only cause youngsters to act in an anti-social manner but tend to stimulate class hatreds.

The Service that adds Comfort to Your Home

During these hot summer days, the time you save with a telephone to aid in settling daily problems may be the difference between a day that worries your nerves into a frame, and a day that includes the time you need for relaxation.

There are so many details in running a household. An extra loaf of bread from the grocer—a six o'clock order of ice cream from the drug store—and so on. And with a telephone to run your errands, many concerns of the day are easily disposed of.

Of course, most everyone is familiar with the value of telephone service, but if you are trying to get along without a telephone you may be surprised, and pleased, to know how little it costs to have a telephone in your home.

All you need to do is to ask any telephone employe, or get in touch with the telephone Business Office. Order your telephone today, and add comfort and protection to your home.

T. V. A. FOR GRENADA

There has been some talk about bringing TVA power to Grenada. Let's not cross the bridge before we get to it. We have heard this talk for the past year or so, but it has all been talk.

We have heard the power company cussed, discussed and re-discussed, and nothing has ever come of the talk. The power company is in business to make money—just like we all are. While we do not concede that the power company is unfair to the public we are for bringing TVA to Grenada as long as the GOVERNMENT CONTINUES ITS PRESENT POWER PROGRAM. However, we can see no need of agitating TVA as long as its legality is in question. Starkville and Aberdeen TVA projects are being held up under injunctions issued at the instance of the Mississippi Power Co. It is only natural that the Grenada project would be held up by an injunction issued at the instance of the Mississippi Power & Light Company should Grenada proceed with a contract for the building of an electric distribution system. They have an investment to protect, and nothing less should be expected. "Then what is the status of the injunction? It is simply this: Federal Judge Allen Cox who issued the writ of injunction refuses to dissolve it or act further until the U. S. Supreme Court renders a decision in the Duke power case" (Columbus Dispatch) which involves the same question that Grenada would be confronted with.

Columbus is marking time until the Supreme Court decides the Duke case. They are overwhelmingly in favor of TVA power; they so expressed themselves in a referendum election. However, they are not going ahead and spend thousands of dollars building a distribution system and in litigation when the same point of law will be decided in the Duke case.

THE LABOR SITUATION

"Since last November there has been a larger monthly average total of strikes than at any other period in the country's history with the exception of 1917," says the United States News. From November through May, exactly 2,323 strikes have occurred. They have struck 46 of the 48 states—North Dakota and New Mexico being the exception. As is to be expected, they have been most numerous in sections of the country where industrial development is highest—Michigan, New York, New England, California. They have been least numerous in the agricultural states—Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, etc.

Even so, there is nothing unique in the number of strikes that have occurred in recent months—the World War years provide a numerical parallel. However, as the U. S. News also points out, there is a vast and fundamental difference in the demands the strikers are making today as compared to those they made in 1917.

In practically all pre-depression strikes, labor demanded higher wage and/or shorter working weeks. The closed shop was rarely a vital issue. Today the primary demand of strikers is the closed shop. In many instances, union demands for higher wages and shorter work weeks have been met by industry—but strikes have continued, because employers refused to grant the closed shop.

This is obviously a vital change in labor's attitude. Furthermore, it has been accompanied by the entry of labor into politics on an unprecedented scale. The A. F. of L., for instance, used to keep absolutely clear of political partnership—yet before the last election, A. F. of L.'s President Green and other high officials came out strongly in favor of the reelection of Mr. Roosevelt. And John L. Lewis, head of A. F. of L.'s rival, the CIO, is a strong Roosevelt backer, and was a major contributor to the Democratic campaign fund. He is likewise a strong influence in several of the major industrial states, notably Pennsylvania and Michigan. It is his belief that the labor movement, if it is to be successful, must be permanently and aggressively involved in politics.

This unprecedented situation has caused a definite cleavage of opinion over labor and its desires and activities. It is the general opinion among employers, for instance, that the great issue of the hour is whether labor is to run, by proxy, the government. The labor union executives and the liberal and radical publications that side with labor, feel that direct action is essential, and that such strategy as the sit-down strikes and the demand for a 100 per cent closed shop, where no non-union man may work, is necessary if labor is to receive its fair share of industry's earnings.

One thing is certain—labor is more powerful today than ever in the past. In the nineteen years ending in 1932, less than 30 per cent of strikes ended with labor winning its demands. Last year, more than 40 per cent of strikes culminated in unequivocal victories for the strikers, while in 36 per cent more, labor received part of its demands.

As every student of history knows, recovery from a depression breeds strikes. This was true after the depression of 1884, 1891, 1907, etc. However, today the issues are deeper and different, and present strikes cannot be accurately compared with those of previous decades. It is also true that for the first time in our history, the Federal government has attempted to solve the problem through legislation—the Wagner Act creating the National Labor Relations Board.

Admittedly, the Wagner Act is one-sided—it puts responsibilities of many kinds upon employers, and few upon labor. The Supreme Court spoke of this fact in upholding the Act, but said there was nothing in the Constitution to prevent Congress from passing a one-sided law. So far, the Wagner Act has certainly failed in preventing strikes—but in fairness to the Act, it should be recorded that it has seldom been invoked. In the recent steel strikes, for instance, it was not brought into force. As a result, the adequacy of the Act remains in question, and is yet to be proved. General opinion holds that the Act must be extensively revised if it is to achieve real success.

TAX LAW LOOPHOLES

A congressional committee investigating tax evasions has brought before the public eye the names of some of our leading financiers. They have attempted to lead the public to believe that these parties have long evaded the federal income tax laws by dishonest methods. While it is true that there is much illegal evasion of our income tax laws, as well as all other tax laws, always has been and always will be, we have failed to see where any of those brought before the committee have pursued this course. They merely evaded payment of taxes by following certain accounting principles that were strictly within the law. We would call it technical evasion.

Congress passed the laws under which these parties are taxable and if there is any legal evasion of income for taxation when it was the intent of Congress to tax such income, then it is the fault of Congress and not the taxpayer.

There are lawyers and experts on taxation all over the country that do nothing else but find new ways to legally evade our tax laws. Under-secretary of the Treasury, Roswell Magill, who presented the names of tax avoiders to the investigating committee, wrote three books helpful to tax dodgers while he was engaged in the practice of law in New York. Now he comes along and endeavors to cast reflection on legal tax dodgers, some of whom possibly adhered to the methods brought out in his books.

We were associated with a tax department of the state for five years and we know of only one instance where a taxpayer demanded that he be assessed with more taxes than he had been assessed.

We say, don't condemn those who legally evade taxes, lay the blame on the legislative body that passed the laws which permit the evasion. Congress should plug up the gaps and quit trying to make political capital.

CLASS AGAINST CLASS

The politicians are always angling for what they call the farm and labor vote. Most elections in the past have usually shown around a 50-50 split in the ranks of labor, farmers and other citizen-voters. Typical Americans may be "fooled part of the time" as Lincoln observed—but when they feel they are "fooled" they act independently the next time they go to the polls. Right now weak political backbones are in a tremble because labor organizations are going to unionize Government and State employees. The danger must be evident to those who remember the famous Boston police strike, which Calvin Coolidge, then governor of Massachusetts, smashed with a firm hand.

If Government workers are to be organized—and John L. Lewis says they will be—what is to prevent eventually including the army and the navy? It is the same thing.

The Civil Service has been "Let down" to "Let in" political pets in recent years. John L. Lewis is too daring and keen to overlook the advantages of enrolling this vast army of Government employees and make them a part of his political dynasty; and if his program wipes up the Civil Service then organized labor will be strengthened in the purpose back of many of the top leaders to have their own brand of a New Deal. It will bear no resemblance to the one that is now so famous. Our Republic has always sought to avoid class rule. America's working people, the best and the most intelligent in the world, are not apt to fall victims to the schemers who seek to perpetuate the struggles of class-against-class in the United States.

THE COUNTRY FOLKS

(By Keene Huffington)

They make the town—good business. When the country folks have good crops, the town folks have good business. Good country folks make good town folks.

Treat the country folks good when they come to town. Buy their products if you can—give them a good price. Offer them a glass of ice water, let them use your rest room. Let them use your telephone—call the person for them if necessary. Let them cool off under your electric fan—offer them a chair and tell them to make themselves at home.

You cannot treat them too good. If you do not think we are right about this—then just go out in the country, and see how nice they will treat you. They will pull your car out of the mud for you, will let you kill their birds, shoot their rabbits, give you anything they have—will ask you to have dinner with them, and even ask you to spend the night.

THE LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

I met a feller the other day and he is kind of a comical duck, and he says to me, Jo, he says, you know the way some things are bein' run down there in Washington, D. C., it makes me think of the geezers who was drivin' a car, and who had taken maybe an extra swing.

And I had never heard anything about anybody drivin' a car, and I says, who was these guys. So he says, Well, it seems that two half-lit-up fellers were zippin' along at a gretty good clip, just riddin' around, and all at once they made a quick turn and just about shaved the paint off a telephone pole.
And the feller ridin' alongside the driver, his hair stood on end, and he hollered at the feller at the wheel, hey, you big loon, why don't you look where you're goin'. And the driver he said, gee whiz, Bill you know, I thought all the time that it was you who was drivin'.

And this here story, it might be old, and lame and halt, but this duck who told it, boy, he knows how they run things in Washington.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA

"Accidental Deaths Actually Increasing"

"The grim old spectre of death hovers constantly over the careless person," said Dr. R. N. Whitfield in a Fourth of July announcement from the state board of health's bureau of vital statistics.

Accidental deaths in Mississippi last year numbered 1682, while in the United States as a whole they totalled 109,000—more than the U. S. losses during the entire war.
In spite of safety campaigns during the past few years, accidental deaths are actually increasing.

Dr. Whitfield said.
In the true sense of the word, few happenings may be termed "accidental," for behind most of them the cause and means of prevention are comprehensible. It is herefore, generally conceded that accidents are preventable.

When organization of public health work over the United States was started approximately 60 years ago, accidental deaths were and far between, and health laws were designed to deal almost exclusively with preventable diseases.
But the development of machinery present a serious problem in life-saving not then anticipated and for which no provision has been made.

The total deaths from contagious and infectious diseases, with the exception of tuberculosis, were 1756 last year, not even 100 more than the total 1682 accidental deaths. Yet there is no denying that a boy or girl, man or woman, is just as dead from being killed in an automobile accident as he or she would be from a case of typhoid fever or diphtheria. All are preventable and should be carried in the same category.

Constant education regarding the reckless and unlicensed driving of automobiles, foolhardy swimming and intoxicating liquors could well save hundreds of precious lives in Mississippi every year. Occupants of fresh graves who now exist only in the grief-stricken hearts of loved ones might still be alive and well had they only been taught to be careful. It is up to the citizens of the state to provide for the spread of knowledge regarding care and safety. It is Mississippi's problem to prevent needless deaths from preventable accidents!

Nasal Spray Urged By Board of Health

The State Board of Health earnestly requests and urges that all citizens in the State use the nasal spray, originated and advocated by the United States Public Health Service, for the prevention of the disease poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) that is rapidly spreading over the State. Already, one hundred and thirty cases have occurred this year with eleven deaths.

Spray only the nose and be sure the spray reaches the top of the nose. One spraying every other day for four sprayings and then once a week is a preventive of the disease. No cases of the disease have occurred in Mississippi after the proper use of the spray four or more times. The use of the spray should be continued at weekly intervals until the epidemic is over.

In his recent address before the Chancery Clerk's Convention at the Robert E. Lee Hotel, Attorney General Creek L. Rice, used the laws and matters relating to Sixteenth Section School Lands in the State of Mississippi as his subject, and it would be well if citizens of the State would read all the excerpts from this address that have been published in the daily papers of the State.

The school children of the State receive much aid from these Sixteenth Section lands, their sales or leases, and General Rice told the vacancy clerks, that the Board of Supervisors of the State are the guardians of the sixteenth section lands, and that they as Clerks of the Board of Supervisors are ex-officio guardians of same and that they know how these lands are being handled in their respective counties.

The Attorney General stated that the management of these lands so as to produce the greatest amount of revenue for the school children of the townships is very important. He cited that the 99-year lease granted on these lands back in the 1830's are now expiring and will have to be renewed, and that today we are in the midst of a prospective oil boom throughout the state, and not only farm cases, but leases for mineral rights should receive the careful attention of those who look after these lands, and that the chancery clerks of the state should post themselves and advise with the boards of supervisors and county superintendents so as to get all avenue possible from lands.

The signing of 2500 highway note bonds of the first Series, and which were sold several days ago at very low rates of interest, was completed yesterday by Governor White and Secretary of State Walker Wood. These bonds or highway notes were then registered by State Treasurer Newton Ames, who attached his signature registration, making them ready for delivery to the buyers.

These highway notes, however do not affect the credit of the State of Mississippi, because their payment is provided for in an allocation by the legislature, which sets aside 1 1/2 cents per gallon of the gasoline tax, and quite a number of these bonds have already been paid off prior to their maturity dates, and all matured have been cared for as they matured. The faith and credit of the State is not pledged for their payment.

Mississippi's gasoline tax collections are running 40 per cent ahead of those of 1935 and 26 per cent ahead of 1936, according to Howard Dyer, Motor Vehicle Commissioner in charge of the collection of such taxes.

In round numbers, the collections from May 1st 1936, through June 30th, 1937, the collections and refunds amounted to $13,000,000, while for the previous year they amounted to $11,500,000 and in 1935 they totaled just a little more than ten million dollars.

More than ten million dollars had been paid to Mississippi farmers who participated in the 1936 acreage reduction program, according to statements given out by T. M. Patterson of the AAA administration and E. H. White, state director of extension, who stated that this amount of payments were reached by June 22nd of this year.

As a result of the State Board of Health's examination of applicants for the practice of medicine, which closed a few days ago, here were twenty-two licenses granted. Eight men passed examinations for the entire four years; fourteen men passed examinations for the last two years, which made up the list of twenty-two. In addition, there were five students passed in the examinations on the first two years of medicine.

Three important conventions have been in session in the State within the past several days—being that of the Mississippi Press Association, which met at Gulfport, and had a delightful session, and at the close of the session the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Norman Mott, Yazoo City, president; Louis Cashman, Vicksburg, vice president; W. C. Marby, Jr., secretary; Edgar T. Crisler, Port Gibson, treasurer; T. L. Turner, Ruleville, chaplain; W. S. Meriwether, Charleston, historian; Asa Stratton, sergeant-at-arms.

Another convention—that of the Chancery Clerks of the State, was held in Jackson last week, and the following officers were elected for next year: J. G. Sherrod of Warren, president; Howard Cameron, of Lauderdale, vice president; and Mrs. Lillie Henry, of Tallahatchie, secretary.

The third was the State Convention of the American Legion and related organizations. This has been in progress in Jackson for the past four days, closing Wednesday of this week.

Hot Weather is Here—Beware of Biliousness!

Have you ever noticed that in very hot weather your organs of digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Perhaps you may have sick headaches, nausea and dizziness or blind spells on suddenly rising. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious and your bowel actions sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the most common symptoms or warnings of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot climates. Don't neglect them. Take Calumet, the improved calomel compound tablets that give you the effects of calomel and salt, combined. You will be delighted with the prompt relief they afford. Trial package ten cents, family pkg. twenty-five cents. At drug stores.

ARE YOU PAYING FOR A SUPERFEX EVEN THOUGH YOU DON'T OWN ONE?

If you don't have SUPERFEX, the spoiled food you throw away is sure to cost you more, sooner or later, than you would pay for SUPERFEX modern refrigeration. Think of the wastes of the hot summer weather: milk that sours; butter that turns rancid; meat that spoils; vegetables that wilt; left-overs that can't be used; waste and loss, that is needless. SUPERFEX ends such waste and in doing so pays its own way—amazingly fast!

But now think also of the daily joy of having modern refrigeration in your kitchen—ample ice cubes for cold drinks—fresh, crispy salads or frozen desserts to enliven hot weather meals—and no waste food, because you can work over the "left-overs" into tasty dishes when you are ready to use them. No running down into the cellar or out to the well—no more worrying whether your next meal has spoiled before you get the chance to prepare it.

It's Made for You
SUPERFEX gives you "modern" refrigeration exactly as it should be made in your kitchen, because SUPERFEX was primarily designed for rural service. The exclusive Super Condenser top, providing both air and water cooling of the refrigerating system, makes it the "cheapest-to-run" refrigerator of any type. The kerosene burners operate only 2 hours and go out automatically—no constant flame—yet give you complete refrigeration all the time. No electricity, running water, piping or moving parts—it's trouble free, built to last, and you can use it or move it anywhere.

PERFECTION MADE
SUPERFEX
the Oil Burning Refrigerator
Check these features
• Greatest economy—users say fuel costs as little as $10 a year.
• Most dependable refrigeration—both air and water cooled, by exclusive Super Condenser top. Refrigeration is continuous although burners operate only 2 hours a day. No constant flame.
• Trouble-free—no electricity, running water, outside connections or moving parts.

Let us show you all of the marvelous SUPERFEX advantages at first-hand—a demonstration in your own kitchen. SUPERFEX is easy to buy on our easy terms.

"Having Wonderful Time" Can Apply to Vacations in the Kitchen!

Bananas From Hot Climes Bring "Cold Comfort" To Meal-Makers

For goodness sake—take a vacation! Like the postcards from vacationists, let "X mark the spot" where you take your ease—in the kitchen! Shun the range; scorn flame-making types of toll; turn to the refrigerator and let it turn out meals for you! You may be the "Cinderella of the family, but you needn't 'sit by the fire' waiting for some magic touch to grant your heart's desire. A rest, a change, and a vacation at home. Your own magic touch, some taste-tested recipes, and your trusty refrigerator to do the work are the cold facts that hot and bothered housewives cool off to learn!

Long warm days mean light delicate meals—salads, sandwiches, a beverage and a fruit or a frozen desert. Of all the cold comforts, the finest is a delectable dessert, that can be prepared quickly in the cool of the day, and served chilly and refreshing at the close of your meal. Whether your dessert is fruit, just "as is" or fruit frozen to a velvety smoothness, let the bountiful banana be your choice. Mother Nature herself is the fairy godmother who lavished her gifts on this favored child of the fruit kingdom. And easy as waving a magic wand is the preparation of the luscious fruit—just a strip of the peel, and bananas are ready to eat, slice, whip, or flout! Their smooth creamy texture makes them an ideal ingredient in frozen dishes and their subtle flavor lends distinction to your menu. Sufficient unto themselves, no sauces or accompaniments to complicate their serving, refrigerator desserts made with bananas are the first choice of the who serves and they who partake. Science, if you add its lore to your household wisdom, tells us that there is energy and nutriment in a banana, and summer energy will be maintained.

Take your vacation in that linoleum chamber of yours; let the range rest in peace while you surprise the family and elevate your reputation with these recipes—for goodness sake!

CANNING INSTRUCTIONS

(By Lottie Wood)
In canning, cleanliness is very important, but it is a necessity that food to be canned be in good condition and that the jars or cans be clean and in condition to seal perfectly. Care should be taken in using glass jars always to have new rubbers and tops that fit the jar. If the clamp seal jars are used, test to be sure they are tight enough. Screw caps should be new each year. Two rubbers should never be used on one jar. In canning by the hot-water method the products should be precooked so that the jar is full of a hot product or one covered with hot liquid. Then it should be set on a rack in the boiler with sufficient water to at least come as high as the top of the product in the can. This water should be a little warmer to begin with than the project in the jar. Quart jars are recommended for fruits and vegetables except those which grow in pods, as okra, beans, peas, and corn. Snap beans are classed as a leafy vegetable until the beans form. Pint jars are to be used for the pod vegetables, pickles, and preserves. Jars should not be sealed tightly until processing is finished. For the exhibits use square clear glass jars with glass tops. There is no special trade name required.

BEANS: Select fresh, young beans of uniform size (preferably smaller than a pencil). String, and cut in inch lengths. Cook in boiling water for five minutes. Pack at once into the jar. Take care to see that no empty spaces are left. In the top of each quart put 1 teaspoon salt. Pour boiling water over to fill all spaces between the beans. Rotating the jar gently will cause air bubbles to come to the top. Adjust rubber, and seal. Open one clamp or unscrew one-half turn. Place in pressure cooker, if you have one, with only about two cups of hot water in it. Process quarts or No. 3 cans for 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. Be sure not to count time until pressure gauge shows 10. Remove cooker from the heat when the processing time is ended, and leave petcock closed until gauge returns to zero. Open the petcock slowly. Remove cooker cover. Then seal jar at once. When cool, store in a dark place. If pressure cooker is not used, process at boiling for three hours.

Mississippi Farm News

Higher yields and $5 to $7.50 more per bale for better cotton grown by producers in one variety communities have stimulated widespread interest in this plan of cotton improvement. Producers in 126 one-variety communities last year added over a million dollars to their income from cotton by growing the same variety. Thirty additional one-variety communities have been organized this year and plans are under way to expand the movement by increasing the membership in existing organizations and by forming new associations.

Thousands of Mississippi farmers will attend mass meetings in the state this week at Clarksdale, Oxford, Tupelo, Belzoni, Jackson, Kosciusko, Newton and Hattiesburg to hear agricultural leaders explain the 1937 AAA bill now up for action in Congress. National leaders predicted two weeks ago farm bill would be passed up for this session. A vigorous demand from farmers themselves throughout the country for permanent national farm legislation with effective provisions for production control, soil conservation and parity prices, apparently has put new life into plans to enact a farm bill at the current session of Congress.

The addresses of Ed O'Neal, president of the American farm bureau federation; Miss Julia C. Newton, of the farm credit administration; Gov. Hugh White and Chester Davis at farm and home week at State College, on July 27, 28, 29 and 30 will be broadcast over Jackson and Memphis radio stations under a contract signed by State Extension Director E. H. White.

Cotton bags designed by the bureau of agricultural economics in cooperation with the North Carolina State College of Agriculture, are now being tested as shipping containers for raw sugar from Cuba. The tests are a part of a general program of the Department of Agriculture to find new and more extensive uses for cotton.

The United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics has forecast that consumer demand for farm products will be maintained at approximately the present level for the next several months. The Bureau noted a "leveling off" in industrial production and general business activity since early spring but said that "any temporary slackening of business this summer probably will not be accompanied by a proportionate decrease in domestic consumer demand."

June 1 returns for farm poultry flocks set another record high production of eggs per 100 hens. The United States Department of Agriculture reports, however, that high feed costs and relatively low egg prices have halted recovery in numbers of laying birds from the low point reached following the 1934 drought.

More than 1,000 tenants bought farms from the Federal Land Banks in February, March, and April of this year, according to a recent statement by Gov. W. I. Myers of the Farm Credit Administration. The FCA head said figures compiled to determine how many tenants were embracing the opportunity to own a farm made possible through sale of Federal land bank properties showed that 25 percent of the 4,467 farms sold by the banks in the three months were bought by tenants.

An impressive 1,000 percent increase in consumption of crude peanut oil in the United States during the past two years is reported by the Bureau of Economics. The apparent disappearance of 134,000,000 pounds of crude peanut oil in 1935-36 was more than ten times greater than in 1933-34.

Uniform Foreclosure In 48 States Needed

Washington, D. C., July 6—The need of uniform foreclosure statutes in all of the 48 states was emphasized today by Horace Russell, General Counsel of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. He said that archaic and involved laws now in force in many states "provide no protection to the borrower in distress and waste millions of dollars in unnecessary procedures and regulations." Mr. Russell suggested that "a uniform statute would be welcomed both by the public and mortgage holding companies. It should provide for reasonably prompt foreclosure at reasonable cost, and at the same time give full protection to the mortgagor. Such a statute can provide more adequate protection to all parties in the mortgage itself and save many dollars on each transaction."

He referred to many present regulations in effect in a number of states as "a form of legalized waste." "New York State is the most distressing in the United States," he said. "The statute there provides no protection to the borrower in distress. We have seen innumerable thousands of individual home owners and farm owners sold out during the recent depression under a foreclosure system which is expensive, which invites early foreclosure and which invites mortgagees to seek deficiency judgments."

"The situation in many of the states is so backward that liberal financing of new homes is being deterred substantially. What sensible mortgagee will lend liberally when he knows that he must spend considerable cash to realize upon his security and at the same time must suffer a delay which results in the accumulation of taxes, insurance and interest on his investment?"

Mr. Russell stated the public is not sufficiently aware of "those evils inherent in the foreclosure laws." He recommended that civic groups and clubs make a study of conditions in their respective states in order that efforts could be made to bring about changes in state laws by the legislatures.

Early Fruits and Vegetables Ended, Watermelons Begin

Many Carloads Beans, Peas, Cabbages, Tomatoes. Watermelons in Front

Having completed the shipment of more than 5,000 carloads of early fruits and vegetables principally including green peas, cabbages, beans, mixed vegetables and tomatoes, which sold as a whole at fairly satisfactory prices, farmers of the state are beginning the annual movement of watermelons, according to J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture.

The season closed was marked by somewhat reduced yields on account of unseasonable dry weather, but the movement to date compares very favorably with prior years. Cabbages and tomatoes brought higher returns than in other recent seasons, while peas and snap beans, relatively minor crops, were disappointing in yield and price. Totals include 237 carloads of cabbages as compared with 2,159 last year; but in both instances far exceeding movements during any other year since 1932. Snap beans totaled 185 carloads and mixed vegetables 585 carloads. Tomatoes totaled 2,052 cars thru June 23, which is less than 300 carloads under shipments during 1935 and 1936.

"Green peas, cabbages, snap beans and tomatoes yielded to farmers $2,042,000 in 1935 and $2,175,000 in 1936. This year, though total shipments may be slightly reduced, improved prices should bring the total farm income to about the 2 1/2 million dollar mark."

"The next major commodity to be moved to northern markets is watermelons. There has been a decided increase in watermelon shipments, 1933's total of 34 carloads being increased to 286 carloads in 1934, and 421 carloads in 1935. Last year more than twice as many melons were shipped than ever before, and the total movement was 1,008 carloads."

"Mississippi is known far and wide for cotton, and all of us are proud that our home state ranks second in the number of bales produced, first in yield per acre, and first in quality. Nevertheless, and regardless of its outstanding leadership and value, cotton is just one of the many crops produced on Mississippi farms. Fruits and vegetables are receiving increased attention, and without adding competition in fields already abundantly supplied, state shipments might well increase from 6,000 or 7,000 carloads as at present, to 10,000 or more carloads annually."

Transportation Contracts To Be Let Soon

During the next few weeks transportation contracts will be made by the county superintendents and the county school board in many of the counties.

We wish to urge these people to be very careful and considerate in making these school contracts. It is necessary to get school contracts as cheaply as possible as the amount of funds available for the operation of schools is very limited. We wish to urge, however, that you get the best possible equipment on these routes with the amount of money available.

The drivers of all school buses should be people with good moral character and should be physically able to perform the duties required of them. No person who partakes of strong drink should be allowed to drive a school bus. The transportation of many thousands of boys and girls is a great responsibility and every precaution should be exercised to insure their safety.

BALLET GIRLS GET TOUCH OF "HOME LIFE" WHEN THEY SWIM IN ATHLETIC CLUB'S POOL

WHAT use is there for a vacuum cleaner around a swimming pool?

The question is natural for the average person who does not know how well-conducted pools are made clear and clean, yet the same principle by which millions of housewives keep their homes spic-and-span and free of unpleasant, harmful dust and dirt, is used just as successfully where swimmers like to congregate.

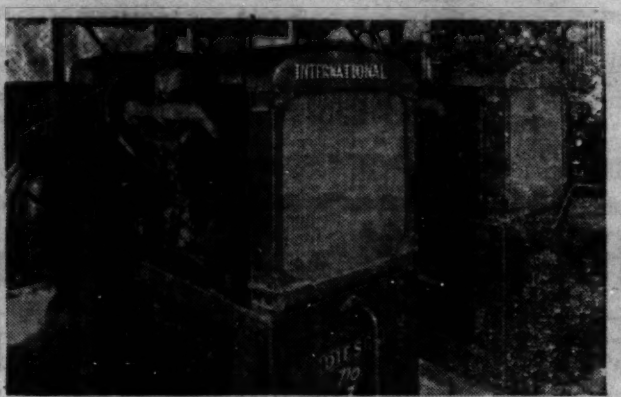

The picture shows, left to right, Sono Osato, Irina Baranova and Lubov Roetova, three of the finest artists in the internationally famous Ballet Russe. It was made when they visited the Lake Shore Athletic Club in Chicago. The pool's vacuum cleaner quickly aroused their interest. It is directed to the spots on the bottom of the pool where sand settles after forcing itself through the water system. It is moved, too, along the tile walls, brightens them just as easily as the housewife freshens her floor coverings with her own particular model of vacuum cleaner. Eleanor Holm and many other famous American swimmers and divers have been seen in this pool, where eleven feet of water are to be no more than four feet of its constant clearness.

15TH MISSISSIPPI

nada Rifles were under the command of Capt. W. S. Strathan. The Grenada Rifles had a considerable part of their equipment furnished by that prominent citizen and patriot Ransom Crowder. They first drilled in the new public square of Grenada, then they were placed in training with their Co. 15th Mississippi in Corinth, Miss. This regiment was composed of the flowers of our district, boys from 15 to 20 years old. Many from college, my own father, Ed Jones Boushe was 18 years old, from Lexington, Kentucky Military School. I have the buttons now that he wore through the entire four bloody years. The regiment was organized in May, 1861.

Strathan of the Grenada Rifles was made Colonel. Grenada Rifles won a medal as being the best drilled company in their division of the army. Strathan served as Colonel till his death at Vicksburg. His body was sent back to Grenada for burial, he was given a military funeral. The hearse was followed by his fine gray war horse. Upon his death he was succeeded in command by the famous Irishman, of Duck Hill, Miss., Col. Mike Farrell, who had served in the British army and was considered one of the best drill masters in the Confederate service. He served with distinction until killed at Franklin, Tenn., whereupon the command of the regiment fell to that gallant soldier, Col. Binford, of Duck Hill, a loyal patriot of the South, and just as loyal to our reconstruction of U. S. Col. Binford was the father of our good friend, Mr. Lloyd Binford, of Memphis, Tennessee. The company was restive under training, desiring active service which was not long denied them, they were placed under General Zollicoffer and went forth to route the Yankees, the first conflict was at Fishing Creek, General Zollicoffer, a refined gentleman, but not experienced in military affairs was surprised and killed. The Confederates greatly outnumbered, fell back to a better position. The first man killed in the 15th Mississippi was David Moore, a 16 year old boy from Duck Hill. The flag-bearer, Ned McDaniel, a 17 year old Grenada boy, carried the flag in right and then his left hand consecutively as each hand was shot off. With this baptism of fire at Fishing Creek began the four bloody useless and disastrous years of Civil War for our Grenada boys. Always greatly outnumbered, facing men better armed, better fed and better clothed, but never quailing in the face of fearful odds. They fought under Zollicoffer, A. S. Johnson, Bragg, Hood, and J. E. Johnson. They fought the innumerable small battles, the battle of Shiloh, the last order given by Col. A. S. Johnson before his death in this battle was given to the 15th Mississippi Regiment. They fought the battle of Murfreesboro, Tenn. Through all of Johnson's Georgia campaigns, the fearful battle of Franklin, under General Hood and the almost complete annihilation of the battle of Nashville. They were even more glorious in defeat than in victory. The retreat of the ruined army was covered by the command under General E. C. Walthall, whom we of Grenada delight to call our own. He lived the balance of his life in Grenada and served as United States Senator until death. Throughout the retreat, the Confederates army numbering 17,000 held at bay Thomas' great army of 75,000. The Yankees were armed with heavy cannons and 16 shot rifles. The Confederates had light cannons, drawn largely by the men, and only single shot rifles. Upon the retreat of the Confederates the order went out to the ruined army to rally around the old 15th which amid the confusion stood firm, contesting every inch of the retreat. I quote Col. Binford the ground was frozen, sleet and rain fell. Our boys were without shelter, slept in the open fields, upon wet and frozen earth. Many were barefooted, and left blood stains in their foot prints. They were only half rationed and one day went without food at all. General Hood, the last general who had replaced Johnson "a tragedy" was succeeded in turn by Johnson but alas, too late. The army, as well as the Cause was irreparably ruined. The brave boys fought the remaining months of the war with courage born with desperation, winning the admiration of friend and foe alike, surrendering at last to starvation as well as annihilation. Their last days ration was 16 grains of parched corn. Mr. C. O. Knox, uncle of Mrs. Nannie Knox Penn, who died three years ago, lost an arm in the struggle, was the last survivor of the heroic Grenada Rifles. I do not think that there is a single survivor of the glorious 15th Mississippi Regiment after the surrender in North Carolina, they returned to their broken homes with full knowledge that no bonus or pension awaited them to rebuild their heritage upon the ruined foundations. Home to fight another war against Carpetbaggers and political degradation, in this latter struggle they won, and their birthright was preserved. In the first a war of bullets and attrition we lost.

To close with the words of our friend, Mr. W. A. Winter, we lost because God Almighty willed that we should lose.

Healthiest and Safest Community in the World Is The 350-Acre Jamboree Camp

Washington, D. C.—The healthiest and safest community in the world will be the 350-acre Jamboree Camp here that will be inhabited by 25,000 Scouts from every state in the nation and 400 from 24 foreign lands.

This is a statement made by Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America who is "Camp Chief" of America's newest community, the tent city on both sides of the historic Potomac River.

At the request of the Boy Scouts of America the United States Public Health Service through Surgeon General Thomas Parran has made available Surgeon William L. Smith, M. D. as Chief Medical Officer.

Each Jamboree sectional camp of 1,260 boys and leaders will have its own medical staff of three physicians and four hospital assistants. A field hospital set up for each section will be manned 24 hours a day, and a Troop "sick call" will be held each morning.

Should it be necessary to give any Scout extended hospital care, he will be taken to the United States Naval Hospital or some other hospital in the District of Columbia.

Before being accepted for the Jamboree each Scout received a thorough medical examination. To make doubly sure that every boy is in good health, another check-up is made en-route for those coming great distances or immediately upon arrival at the Jamboree Camp. More than 200 doctors are to assist in this inspection, 100 of them being Washington physicians who volunteered their services. Between 65 and 75 doctors will be attached to Dr. Smith's staff for the duration of the Jamboree.

Plans for fire protection and fire fighting, if the latter becomes necessary, are important in the health and safety precaution being taken. This is under the direction of William E. Lawrence, Assistant National Director of Health and Safety of the Boy Scouts of America. Chief Schrom, commanding officer of the District of Columbia Fire Department has detailed a fire marshal and a three platoon fire company and two pieces of apparatus which will be in charge of a Deputy Fire Chief.

River steamers, buses, meeting places, camp fire locations and general assembly grounds and stands have been carefully inspected and will receive periodic check-ups throughout the Jamboree. Swimming will be enjoyed only in large, well-protected artificial swimming pools in the District of

SOCIAL SECURITY BOARD
NOW ASSIGNS ACCOUNT NUMBERS

The Jackson office of the Social Security Board in the Tower Building has taken over from the Post Office Department the job of assigning social security account numbers in Grenada county, according to H. H. Dashiell, manager.

The Jackson office now distributes applications for social security account numbers (SS-5), provides over-the-counter service in filling out the forms, and receives completed forms from applicants in this county. However, workers may continue to obtain blank application forms from the local post offices.

Postmasters will give the applicant any information and assistance he may require in filling out the form, but instead of returning his application to the post office, the applicant will send it to the Jackson field office. His account number card will be mailed to him by that office.

Mr. Dashiell explained that although the major part of the work of assigning account numbers to workers in covered employments is practically finished, it can never be considered entirely complete. Some workers now in covered employment may not yet have applied for numbers. Moreover, workers who enter covered employment this year will apply for account numbers. This group will include young people who start work for the first time and others who were not previously engaged in covered employment.

The application which the worker is required to file for a social security account number remains virtually unchanged. It asks the applicant to give his name and address in full; the business name and address of his employer (if unemployed, he will merely state that he is "unemployed"); the date and place of birth; his father's name and his mother's maiden name.

This application may be mailed by the employee in a stamped envelope to the Jackson office or, sent to the first field office through his employer or through any representative organization such as a labor union, if the employer or the organization is willing to accept it for transmittal.

A worker should file his application for an account number even though he may be in doubt as to whether he is working in an employment covered by the act, Mr. Dashiell said, explaining that such action will not in any way prejudice his standing as may subsequently be determined by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The workers will also be advised that he may file an application whether he is employed or unemployed.

The Jackson office and local post offices also distribute to employers, on request, blank forms for making application for an identification number (SS-4). All employers of one or more persons in covered employment are required to complete and file this form. Employers will be advised, as are employees, to make application even though in doubt as to whether they are in employment covered by the act. Application for employer identification number should likewise be mailed in a stamped envelope to the Jackson field office of the board.

It was explained that cooperation by the post offices in this county will go no further than distributing blank forms to employers and employees, assisting applicants in correctly filling out forms, and advising them as to the proper place to file their applications.

Questions relating to benefits or claims will be referred by the post offices to the Jackson field office of the board, and all questions of coverage or of taxing provisions of the act will be referred to the Collector of Internal Revenue in Jackson.

glue factory. The army is metering its fighting forces so horses must go. The horses that were getting old were the victims of the change. The condemned horses were led before a firing squad near Jackson barracks. When the firing was over with, the bodies were sent to the glue factory. Remember the horse show, the horse has figured in history and romance. Do honor to the horses that will be on parade July 15th.

Sorry the President remained silent in the first stages of the strike. It did his cause no good. We are giving up many things in the South for which we have fought, but we still believe in the right to work for whom you please, to join the C. I. O. if you want to or the American Federation of Labor. We do not believe in violence to prevent fellow workers from earning a living for their families if that is what they desire. President Green is looking on, saying little. He knows that it takes public opinion to win a strike and he well knows that Mr. Lewis is alienating public opinion.

We understood from a conversation with Lieutenant Governor Billie Snider, that he desires to make a reciprocal treaty with the hill section. He had rather see us have the markets of the people of his country than the people of the North and West. We do much talking about lack of markets and fail to see one at our very door. Coahoma buys many things that could be bought from our section. There is a difficulty, chief of which irregular delivery and lack of standardization. He can help a great deal in this by helping to better the inspection laws of the state. That does not mean aid another department. The administration would be under the State Department of Agriculture and would far more than pay for themselves and at the same time protect the buying public and raise the price of the farmers' products.

The chief of the recommendations made by the Land Office investigating committee is that the office become appointive. Auditor Craig has also done some recommending. He wants more local control. He also wants to see that the counties get more from the sales of land than they have been receiving.

Little doubt but that the President is leaning too far to the left. Vice President Garner has been the wheel horse for the President in the Senate. He and the President are evidently not agreeing so well. He went on vacation when so many pressing problems are yet ahead. Even faithful Senator Joe Robinson disagreed on the appropriation for relief. He expressed a fear that the public debt keeps mounting and says that $37,000,000,000 is not to be sneezed at. The whole trend is for a coalition of the conservatives against the ultra progressives.

Residents of Skuma Valley are still hopeful that they will strike oil. They are sinking the pipe with a view of trying to bring the oil in. Here is hoping. If prosperity comes to Ya'obushians may be a little will drift this way.

What a tragedy to see so much money wasted in many ways and not enough to provide room for the hundreds who are begging admission to the Sanatorium at Magee. Many wards have had to be closed and that meant the closing of the door of hope for hundreds who will die because they cannot be treated. What an excellent thing if we could have published lists of all the boon doggers in the State pay rolls who are not rendering a service commensurate with the pay they get and spend more of it in supporting such unusual institution as the Sanatorium.

Letter To Band Mothers

Grenada, Miss., July 1, 1937
Dear Band Mothers:
On July 15, as you know, the unusual and thrilling horse show will be observed at the Fair Grounds. This horse show is an unusual event. It is not an ordinary show nor street carnival, nor anything of that kind. It brings to Grenada some of the finest and best and most beautiful horses.

It cost money, much money, to secure this horse show and the merchants of Grenada had to guarantee some $1500 to secure this event. The school band is not forgetful of the fact that the business men of Grenada assume full responsibility when generally called upon for funds for the school band. In return, the band would like to express its appreciation in promoting the sale of tickets for the horse show to prevent any loss of funds by those who are promoting the show.

We are appealing to you to enter into the spirit of the thing and push in every way the sale of tickets for the horse show. Encourage the band children in their sales campaign; help them to put pep and snap into it; and let us show our friends, the business men of Grenada, that the school band is ready to respond in their behalf.

Very sincerely yours,
ROGER DOLLARHIDE,
Band Director
MRS. J. W. GIFFIE,
President of Band Mothers
